

The Daily Record

AT LEAST 219 PERSONS were killed and more than 1,100 persons were injured as a result of a series of tornadoes which swept with destructive fury through six southern states. The above scattered wreckage is all that remains of the home J. W. Stafford and his family in Moscow, Tenn. The Staffords took refuge in a cellar as a tornado struck Moscow. Homes were ripped from their foundations in Arkansas, west Tennessee, Missouri and north Mississippi.

Cold Weather Grips Area Devastated By Tornadoes

Little Rock, Ark., (AP)—Grief, exhaustion and cold blanketed the tornado stricken areas of six southern states last night where 233 died and 1,100 more were injured. The death toll was expected to climb since many of the injured—there were 711 in Arkansas alone—were in critical condition.

It was the worst week-end of tornadoic terror in the past quarter of a century.

Temperatures dipped last night in the torn and desolate areas along the Mississippi river to freezing or near freezing.

For the homeless, crowded into any available shelters, it meant misery added to loss.

The exact number of dead in Arkansas was difficult to compute. The Red Cross gave two figures—121 and 158. The latter figure contained many duplications but after their elimination and the addition of new names, the toll became 134.

The downpours which accompanied the dread winds swelled streams dangerously and added to the property damage already estimated in the tens of millions.

While the digging for more bodies continued, there were rising hopes that the wave of death had subsided.

The American Red Cross, which compiled the list of dead and injured, said its figures were incomplete. Whether they would be slightly higher or lower depended on a reckoning.

Apparently the tornadoes and storms which boiled out of leaden skies Friday to strike Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama and Kentucky were played out.

The Atlanta weather bureau said the last reported blow hit northwest Alabama on Saturday and that no new tornadoes were in sight.

Other tornadoes, listed by Weather bureau as a possibility Saturday night, evidently failed to materialize.

At least 1,007 homes were destroyed and 1,348 damaged. Here again the Red Cross emphasized the figures were incomplete. Livestock and crop damage was untold.

Arkansas, the hardest hit, counted 134 dead; Tennessee, 58; Missouri, 14; Mississippi, 11; Kentucky, 8, and Alabama, 8.

The Reconstruction Finance Corp. has placed the area in an emergency class, opening the way for government loans to storm victims. President Truman has ordered a survey of damage with the hope of bringing swift relief to the injured and homeless.

The latest addition to the death toll came from Alabama, where storms a few hours apart Saturday killed eight persons and demolished buildings in the northwest part of the state.

All the Alabama dead were in Morgan county, some 70 miles north of Birmingham.

The storms which roared into Arkansas Friday cut a swath from the southwest corner to the northwest tip. Judsonia, near Searcy, was the heart of the stricken area.

One observer said Judsonia looked "like a giant steamroller had crushed everything in sight."

Senator Wants Inside Story

Washington (AP)—Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) said yesterday he will ask the Senate Judiciary committee to decide whether Attorney General McGrath and Newbold Morris should be summoned to tell under oath "the inside story" of how Morris got his job as Federal cleanup investigator.

Morris, already under fire on Capitol Hill, has started his cleanup with a study of McGrath's Justice department.

"The people are entitled to know how much they reasonably can expect from an investigation conducted by Mr. Morris into the affairs of Mr. McGrath, who is his superior officer," McCarran told a reporter. "The committee will decide whether we should provide that opportunity."

Thief Takes Over $125,000

Reading (AP)—More than $125,000 in cash was stolen from a strongbox in the home of Mrs. Helen M. Bidden over the weekend, Det. Lt. Paul Slapikas said last night.

Slapikas said that the thief or thieves gained entry to the home through a kitchen window by using a screw driver and jimmying it open.

They did not take several thousand dollars worth of bonds and securities which were also in the box. They also ignored jewelry, including several diamond rings, which were in a jewel box on a bureau of the bedroom.

The theft was discovered by Mrs. Bidden and her son, C. Arthur, upon their return from a trip to New York Saturday night.

The strong box, which also was jimmied open, Slapikas said, was in Mrs. Bidden's bedroom.

Slapikas said several suspects will be questioned today.

Czechs Jail Jewish Leader

Tel Aviv, (AP)—Czechoslovakia informed Israel yesterday it has jailed Mordechai Oren, a leader of Israel's left-wing Socialist Mapam party, on charges he committed "crimes against state security."

Private sources here believe Oren, who disappeared in Prague early last year on his way home from a Communist-sponsored trade union conference in Berlin, may have been in contact with Rudolf Slansky, powerful former Communist party secretary-general who has been caught up in a sweeping anti-Jewish purge in Czechoslovakia.

The victim was identified as Robert H. Deiter, 35, a crane operator for Bethlehem Steel Co. and the father of three children.

Ridgway Pleads For Patience During Korean Truce Talks

Farouk Asked To Dissolve Parliament

Cairo, Egypt (AP)—The Egyptian Cabinet yesterday asked King Farouk to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies today and called for new elections to take place May 18.

Propaganda Minister Farid Zaki said that martial law, which has governed all Egypt since the fire-riots of Jan. 26, would be lifted for the election period.

He said the elections would be concluded by May 22 with the new Parliament scheduled to hold its first meeting May 31.

The present chamber is controlled by the violently anti-British Wafd party whose leader, Mustapha Nahas Pasha, was dismissed as premier Jan. 27 following the devastating fire-riots in Cairo.

Two other Wafdist Cabinet ministers—former Interior Minister Fuad Serag El Din Pasha and former Social Affairs Minister Abdel Fattah Pasha—were arrested last Thursday and charged with plotting against Egypt's security and stability.

The new non-party Cabinet's request for dissolution of the chamber and new elections was made the day after negotiations began between Premier Ahmed Naguib Al Hilaly and British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson. The pair met on the dispute caused by Egypt's demands that British troops evacuate the Suez canal zone and that Britain surrender the Sudan to Egypt.

There has long been speculation that King Farouk might dissolve Parliament if its Wafdist majority showed signs of trying to block Anglo-Egyptian negotiations.

On March 1, the same day on which Hilaly Pasha was appointed premier, a communique was issued saying "an agreement" had been reached with the Wafdists which would make it unnecessary to suspend Parliament.

Reliable diplomatic informants said then that appointment of Hilaly Pasha—who was ousted from the Wafd last November—might split the dominant party and provide the basis for calling new elections. They speculated that in such elections Hilaly Pasha might get the backing of the Wafd old guard, the Saadists—a Wafd splinter group—the Liberal constitutionalists and other independents.

Truman Says
Threat Eased

Washington (AP)—President Truman said yesterday that efforts of the U. S. and its Allies to strengthen the cause of peace and freedom "are turning back the threat of Communism."

"We are not just sitting by, waiting to put out fires when trouble starts in some far away place," he said. "We are actively at work, every day, with our neighbors and our friends around the world not only to overcome any threats to world peace but also to strengthen freedom and justice so that, in the future, the danger to peace will be less."

Truman made the comment in a foreword to a new outline of American foreign policy drafted by the State department at his request. He urged all Americans to read the 80-page document so as to understand better "not only the roots and branches" of U. S. policies, but the nation's basic objectives.

Catasauqua Man
Dies In Crash

Laureys (AP)—A 35-year-old West Catasauqua man was killed yesterday when his rented automobile skidded off Route 145, hit a tree and careened off, plowing into another tree about 10 miles from Allentown.

The victim was identified as Robert H. Deiter, 35, a crane operator for Bethlehem Steel Co. and the father of three children.

Millions Of Dollars Wasted On Super-Secret Air Base In Greenland, Senate Probers Told

Washington (AP)—Reports that millions of dollars have been wasted on a super-secret air base in Greenland—described as near the North Pole and on an air route to Soviet Russia—are under study by Senate investigators.

Public hearings may be ordered this week by Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) of the Senate armed services subcommittee on preparedness.

Johnson's criticism of "waste, inefficiency and downright graft" on an airbase project in North Africa brought a drastic Pentagon order for reforms on Friday.

Secretary of the Army Pace directed the chief of Army Engineers to relieve the top officers in charge of the North African construction.

He also promised that a combine of five contractors, Atlas Constructors, would eliminate waste and inefficiency or face possible termination of a cost-plus-fixed-fee contract.

The Greenland airbase, which goes under the code name "Bluejay," already has come under sharp criticism by the Senate watchdog group.

Work on it is limited to a few months a year when the ice-locked polar region opens up for ships bringing in materials, equipment and workers.

Johnson hopes to air criticism of the Bluejay project before the new work season gets under way.

Col. Harry E. Reed, chief of the Army Audit agency, has promised him that "we will have a report on Bluejay within a few days."

The colonel testified that the North African air bases job "is the smallest one we have ever had." Johnson asked if similar reports on Bluejay "are happy."

"No, sir," Reed replied.

The subcommittee already has heard testimony that thousands of "Bluejay" workers collected more than $300,000 pay while at home awaiting orders to report for duty.

Senators also heard that construction crews collected more than three millions in wages while on a ship en route to the project and before doing any actual work. Army Engineers explained ice delayed the ship for 42 days, on a voyage expected to last only 15 days.

Washington Post
Comes Out For
Gen. Eisenhower

Washington (AP)—The Washington Post, an independent newspaper which has not endorsed a presidential candidate since 1916, came out editorially last night for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"We stand for Eisenhower," the paper said.

The Post editorial said in part: "The time for change is overdue. The Democratic party as well as the people's trust has been betrayed. Twenty years of enjoyment of office have left the administration blind to error and obtuse about wrongdoing."

Billions-Dollar
Cut Seen For Foreign Aid

Washington (AP)—Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) predicted yesterday Congress will slash a billion dollars off the $7,900,000,000 foreign aid program and Senator Russell (D-Ga.) called that a "conservative estimate."

Sparkman told a reporter he hopes reductions can be made on a "sensible" basis without crippling the program. He said talks with colleagues on the Foreign Relations committee indicate there is strong sentiment for economy.

"It may turn out that we will work out some kind of percentage cut, perhaps a 10 percent reduction in direct military aid and a 20 percent cut in so-called economic aid," he said.

This would be somewhat in line with the plea of Secretary of Defense Lovett that, if Congress feels it must whittle down the program, it should let the administration decide where the ax will fall.

The committee has called Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther before it for testimony today on the military situation in Europe as it relates to the mutual assistance program. He will be battling for his chief, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the North Atlantic Treaty organization (NATO) forces.

Lodge Believes Ike Favored Much Bigger Effort In Korea

(By the Associated Press)

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign manager said yesterday he had the "personal impression" that Eisenhower favored a "much bigger effort" in Korea than had actually been made.

Senator Lodge, Massachusetts sparkplug of the Eisenhower movement, told newsmen he couldn't give the source of his impression because it came to him confidentially.

Had Eisenhower's opinions been followed, Lodge asserted, "we probably would have reached a decision in Korea much quicker."

The absent general was the concern of other Republican aspirants for the GOP presidential nomination.

Harold E. Stassen said he hopes to win the New York State delegation's support if Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio get in a convention deadlock.

Stassen said that when New York selects its delegates and "as I rather anticipate, the two camps of Senator Taft and General Eisenhower block each other, then we hope to begin to develop that second choice strength to add to our first choice strength from the Middle West, and build on toward a nomination."

Taft's campaign chief, David S. Ingalls, said "what the Republican party is witnessing these days is another effort to pull off a 'Willkie blitz.' The Republican party will not fall for the same tactics by the same old crowd."

He was referring to the 1940 campaign during which backers of the late Wendell L. Willkie stormed the convention and won their man the GOP nomination.

Ingalls, in his statement, also said the New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries, where Eisenhower showed up as a favorite, meant nothing.

He told a great deal more can be said about the final nomination results by four major primaries in the coming six weeks than by those already past. He listed the coming ones as the Wisconsin primary, on April 1; Illinois, April 8; Ohio, May 6; and West Virginia, May 13.

Senator Saltonstall, Massachusetts Republican backing Eisenhower, said he thought Taft's supporters would be loyal to their candidate despite reverses in primaries. He said the question was whether "all the delegates in Taft column will go to the convention just as strong for Taft as they are now."

Haylift Hindered
By Snow Squalls

Elko, Nev., (AP)—Snow squalls socked in the dramatic Nevada "haylift" to hungry cattle yesterday, but the weather couldn't stop Army bulldozers pushing through snow-jammed ranch roads.

Only one Air Force plane made it through near-blizzard conditions to drop baled hay to an estimated 7,000 starving cattle. But feed trucks followed snowplows toward some 190,000 other snowbound animals and Navy and Air Force planes stood by to resume the "haylift" when the weather clears.

Funds Earmarked

Key West, Fla., (AP)—President Truman yesterday earmarked $1,300,000 of mutual security funds for resettlement of "qualified people who escape from the Iron Curtain countries."

World Peace, Lives Of POWs Held At Stake

Tokyo, Monday, (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, a rugged but cultured man of battle, wants Americans to be patient while his United Nations command staff haggles with the Communists over peace in Korea.

"I must say you find your patience sorely tried when dealing in any way with the Communist negotiators," he said in an interview.

"But patience is a necessity. The stakes in this case are not only the lives of Allied prisoners in Communist hands, but world peace itself."

Ridgway, 57, who succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur last April as supreme Allied commander, tilted his tall, powerful body slightly forward in a green leather chair at his headquarters. His steady brown eyes hardened. His voice was deep and grave.

"I think our people realize the situation in which we find ourselves today," Ridgway said. "A situation so potentially grave calls for the most soul-searching objective analysis of what you intend to do and what your objectives are."

He cautioned against the aggressive question, "Why do we put up with this?"

Far-reaching, almost incalculable consequences could flow from acts which some of our people advocate," he explained. "In this struggle there is the compelling necessity of patience to the nth degree."

"Turning to Red accusations that the Allies are 'sowing North Korea and Manchuria with diseased insects,' Ridgway said:

"Russia's making up of the germ warfare business is the most disturbing of recent developments. It is completely in accord with the deliberate and repeated employment of falsehoods of Soviet leaders. It is all a part of the big lie."

"This result is more hatred and more animosity and less chance of getting the world situation straightened out. The fabrication shows they will stop at nothing to stir up things which could lead to bitterness and war."

"The extent to which they can convince people of such lies is frightening."

How long before there is an armistice in Korea?

When the truce talks began he said they would take a long time. That was nearly nine months ago. At the start, Ridgway expressed doubts about the Reds' "honest desires" for wanting to discuss a truce.

Now he says the Communists really may want an armistice but he will not predict when one might come.

Another question that crops up often is, "Would you like to succeed General Eisenhower in Europe?"

"A fool question, I'll go where I'm told" is Ridgway's only response.

Three Perish
In Hotel Fire

Bingham, Me. (AP)—Wind-fanned flames roared through a 130-year-old wooden hotel and business block yesterday, killing three persons and injuring seven.

Some 25 other screaming occupants of the Dutton hotel jumped into snowbanks from second and third floor windows, crawled to safety along smoke-filled corridors or made their way down fire department ladders.

Scores of screaming occupants of the Dutton hotel jumped into snowbanks from second and third floor windows, crawled to safety along smoke-filled corridors or made their way down fire department ladders.

It is of real advantage to the free nations of the world to have such a friend and ally in the Far East. The necessity to defeat the misled Japan in the last war unfortunately gave Communism the chance to bid for the domination of Asia. Had not the United States moved into Japan, the Soviet Union would have occupied these vitally strategic islands.

"Even today the menacing power of Soviet Communism is dangerously close to Japan."

Andrew Taylor Succumbs At County Home

Andrew J. Taylor, 80, Kellersville, died at 5:45 a.m. yesterday at the County home.

Born in Virginia, he had been a waiter employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, was later a headwaiter at Columbia hotel, Columbia, N.J. He had been a Stroudsburg resident for the last 10 years.

Free Booklet Tells How Deaf Hear Again With Startling Clarity, Ease

CHICAGO (Special)—New hope for the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing was voiced by a noted Chicago acoustical scientist.

He reported that through the miracle of modern electronics it is now possible to overcome deafness even if the loss is severe.

He demonstrated now the deaf can hear again with a clarity and ease they never dreamed possible.

According to this electronic engineer, Mr. Sam Posen of Bellone, "the longer a hearing loss is neglected the harder it is to recapture certain speech sounds and understand them."

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with what can be done to prevent a hearing loss from becoming progressively worse, full authoritative details are described in an informative illustrated booklet, "New Discoveries To Help The Deaf Hear," which will be sent in a plain wrapper without cost or obligation.

To obtain your free copy, simply send your request to: Electronic Research Director, Dept. 315A, Beltone Hearing Aid Co., 1450 W. 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill. A postcard will do. —Adv.

Queen To Visit Scotland When Mourning Ends

London (AP)—Queen Elizabeth's first major social engagement after court mourning for King George VI ends will be a six-day jaunt to Scotland to meet Scots dignitaries, a Buckingham palace announcement said yesterday.

The Duke of Edinburgh will accompany the sovereign. They'll take up official residence at Holyroodhouse palace, Edinburgh, from June 25 to 30. On June 26 the Queen will give a presentation party at Holyroodhouse. The next afternoon, she'll hold a party in the palace gardens.

Court circles emphasized the sovereign is following her father's custom of visiting the Scottish capital in the summer.

Last year King George, his Queen and Princess Margaret were scheduled to go to Holyroodhouse on June 21 for a stay. The plans were scrapped when the King was hit by influenza. Court mourning for King George ends May 31.

Mrs. Truman Won't Answer Question On Another Term

By Ruth Cowan
Washington (AP)—Mrs. Harry Truman laughingly declined yesterday to say if she would like to live in the White House for four more years.

Mrs. Truman was in high spirits as she took a group of women reporters through the private family living quarters in the newly redone White House.

She was obviously pleased at hearing reporters say "Look at those lovely curtains." "I like that color" and so on. She related she had had much to do with selecting the color scheme and placing the furniture in the family's own section.

"I think it came out well," she said.

But when one of them asked, "Mrs. Truman, would you like to spend four more years at the White House?" All side comments ceased.

Mrs. Truman chuckled and her blue eyes twinkled.

"That is a question to which you are not going to get a 'yes' or 'no' answer out of me," she said. "It was a fair question though."

"But could you stand it if you had to?" another reporter asked.

"Well, I stood it for seven years," Mrs. Truman replied.

It is no secret that Mrs. Truman has never liked the glass-bowl existence a first lady has to live, and has been trying to persuade her husband not to run for another term.

The Trumans have been living at Blair House, across the street, for the past three years while the White House was being rehabilitated. Mrs. Truman said she would be glad, "in a way," to return to the White House.

She said there is lots of last-minute packing to do, but she hopes to get moved in by the end of this week.

School Jointure Committee Appointed

Flory Heads Study To Be Made By PTA

East Stroudsburg Parent-Teachers Association President Michael Hannon yesterday announced the names of persons selected to serve on a five-member "steering committee" on school jointure.

Named chairman of the committee was Jesse Flory, East Stroudsburg businessman. The four committee members are Mrs. George Stabenow, Mrs. Harry Heller, Earl J. Slutter and Theodore E. Miller. Hannon will serve as advisory member on the committee.

The naming of the committee followed a decision by the entire PTA group last week to "investigate all the advantages and disadvantages" in a possible jointure of East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg school districts along with consolidation or jointure with neighboring townships in Monroe county.

The association then authorized the formation of a committee for the purpose of making such an investigation. Hannon, at that time, asked for a few days to make the selection of members on the grounds that such a selection should contain members from industry, civic groups, homemakers and education.

Following a survey of the potential effect of jointure, the committee will make a full report on its findings to the PTA.

Hannon set the date of the committee's first meeting for Tuesday night at 7 at the home of Chairman Jesse Flory. Plans will be made then for the study.

Picket Shot In Scuffle

Pittsburg (AP)—An official of the United Truckers association reported last night a picket was shot in Weirton, W. Va., during a scuffle in which some 90 company drivers attempted to break up picketing by independent operators.

Wilford Brounger, an organizer for the United Truckers association, said word of the shooting was received at the association's headquarters in Somerset.

The wounded man was identified as William Ingram of Steubenville, Ohio. Brounger said the assailant, not identified, is a member of Local 249, AFL Teamsters union, Pittsburgh. Brounger said the man is under arrest.

Brounger said Ingram was shot in the shoulder and is in critical condition at a Weirton hospital. He was hurt when idled drivers of the Continental Transportation Co. formed a "goon squad" and moved in on a group of owner-operators, Brounger said.

Two Borough Youths Enlist In Air Force

Two Stroudsburg men enlisted in the U. S. Air Force last week, according to M/Sgt. James J. Marian, commander of the local recruiting office.

The men were John E. Hinton Jr., 21, of 1117 Dreher Ave. and John J. Miller, 17, of 1128 Graden St. They have departed for Sampson Air Base, Geneva, N. Y., to begin their basic training.

No more vacancies, Marian said, exist for the Air Force during the month of March. Applications, however, are now being accepted for the April quota.

Fuller Urges Reorganization Of Postoffice

Washington (AP)—The Citizens committee for the Hoover Report yesterday urged Congress to speed up its work on legislation designed to modernize the Postoffice department.

Walter D. Fuller, chairman of the organization's postal subcommittee, made the request in letters to Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-Sc) and Rep. Murray (D-Tenn). They are chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the Senate House Postal Service committee.

"There are many problems in connection with the postoffice," Fuller said. "These are not faults of postal employees, nor of Congress."

"The trouble is with antiquated methods, such as centralization of all authority in Washington, and, above all, with an immature system of cost accounting."

Community TV Tower Placed In Operation

Bangor—A local "community television system" went into operation Saturday on a cooperative basis.

Set owners in this borough were approached prior to the beginning of the system with the idea of paying a $125 installation fee for the use of a direct line to a television "high tower" in the borough.

In addition to this initial charge the residents pay a monthly rental of $3.50.

Reports from viewers during the first two days of operation indicate that it is successful.

State Police Plan Charge Against Driver

State police yesterday prepared to file a reckless driving charge against the driver of a car which struck another at 12:05 a. m. on Route 611 a half mile north of Stroudsburg.

Pfc. Don Henzey said Peter Bobita, 18, Palmerton student, was driving north at the time. He intended to turn right onto Legislative Route 45050, he told police.

His car was struck in the rear by the auto of Ralph E. Hayes, 18, Pocono Summit laborer, police said. The Hayes auto skidded while attempting to slow up, Pfc. Henzey said. The reckless driving charge will be filed against Hayes before Justice of the Peace John A. Brislin, Stroud township, police said.

Swanson was arraigned shortly after his release from the State hospital here. He had suffered head injuries.

Killed instantly in the crash were Col. Fred Ale, about 57, of Gouldsboro, a retired Air Force officer and owner of Rimrock lodge, Gouldsboro; and John Royal, 28, Gouldsboro, also known as Eugene Fournier, bartender at the lodge and a former Lakeland, Fla., resident.

A third passenger, Mrs. Margaret Petherick Ale, 31 Gouldsboro, the colonel's daughter-in-law, suffered head, leg and arm injuries. She was reported in "fair" condition at Hahnemann hospital.

The four were riding in a car which crashed into the rear of a truck on Blinker Light Hill near Fells Corners. Swanson ran from the scene but was caught by State police after a half-mile chase from the road.

Bangor—Officials of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, Bangor area, will meet this morning with the management of the Crown plant of the Julius Kayser Co. to discuss the continuing layoff of hosiery workers at the plant.

The union's membership met Saturday at Union hall to discuss the talks and hear an announcement of the date set for the conference. Kenneth Altomese, president of the organization was in charge of the meeting.

Rank and file union members are reported to believe that the layoffs have been made by the company because labor costs at the firm's southern mills are much lower.

Liquor Prices

If Pennsylvania intends to stay in the liquor business—and there is no indication it has any idea of relinquishing its lucrative monopoly in this field—it is going to have to recognize some basic business principles.

For instance: It is easy to price yourself out of a market; Customers will flock to a competitor whose prices are better than yours.

And the law of diminishing returns still prevails. A comparison of last year's liquor sales in Ohio with those in Pennsylvania should give our Liquor Control Board a thought. For the first time Ohio sold more liquor than Pennsylvania—some 137,000 gallons more.

Why? Because Ohio, with 2,500,000 fewer potential customers, is a haven for lusers? No. Because liquor in Ohio, where it also is sold through state stores, is about a dollar a fifth cheaper.

The big price difference has encouraged widespread smuggling. Now and then, but not often, some of these border-runners are caught.

Strict enforcement would be unthinkable. It would mean a big border patrol and customs service.

If the liquor Board still refuses to recognize this evidence that it is pricing itself out of business, it should glance at a report on federal liquor-tax revenues:

Figures show the federal liquor-tax revenues for January, 1952, at $10.50 a gallon, had dropped 52.3 per cent from January, 1951, revenues, at $24 a gallon.

In other words, the tax was boosted 17 per cent and the revenue was cut in half. That is the law of diminishing returns working with a vengeance.

This report also cited Georgia's experience in cutting its warehouse tax on whisky from $4 to $1 a gallon.

Retail prices dropped a dollar a fifth. Legal liquor sales rose 51.2 per cent—and Georgia got a million dollars more a year in revenue.

If Pennsylvania's Liquor Board still is not convinced of the folly of its pricing ways, we'd like to make an observation that should be rather obvious.

The higher the artificial price of liquor, the higher the incentive for bootlegging. And we have had quite enough of that.

Broadway and Elsewhere

—By Jack Lait

New York — The boy with two strikes on him was up in Brooklyn. Felony court the other day. He was small and dark-haired and wore a gray suit with puffed trousers, and the arresting officer told the bench he'd picked up the boy for illegal possession of a loaded revolver, after a rumble near a Brooklyn dance hall. He had a .22 under his arm when he was caught and he told the cop he was 16 and his name was Frank Abbando.

Frank Abbando. This was fuel, indeed, for those black-is-black, white-is-white souls who insist that bad blood will tell... the ones who tell you that criminals are born and not made. "Don't hand me that stuff about environment," these narrow ones will tell you. Was it Father Flanagan who said there was no such thing as a bad boy? The narrow ones would laugh in his face. And here would be the proof—the son of Frank Abbando, up on a gun rap at 16.

They used to call the old man 'The Dasher, 10 and 12 years ago. I have a clear picture of him in my mind now, mostly because I have been re-reading about him in the new book by Burton Turkus and Sid Feder, Murder, Inc.: The Story of the Syndicate. But maybe some of you remember the name. They had a lot of picturesque names, those Murder, Inc., hoods—Blue Jay Magoon, Kid Twist, Pittsburgh Phil, Lepke and Gurrah, Happy Maione, Charlie the Bug and a lot of others. I remember the great good fun that Asa Bordage used to have with those wonderful names, that sounded as if they were right out of a gangster movie. Asa was a good re-writer man who brought the lurid story of the mob to readers of an afternoon daily for which we both worked, and later he was a playwright named John Bright turned out a good enough play about it all, called Brooklyn, U. S. A.

The Dasher was, I guess, typical of the whole bunch of cut-throats. He was a onetime ball-player without a great deal of imagination who, all through his trial, was morose because "I'm gonna miss the first night ball game of the season." In the Turkus-Feder book, there is a vivid account of this trial, and in re-reading it recently I kept wondering to myself if little Frank had seen any of it. He must have been about six, then.

Turkus is a tough man in a trial court, the police reporters used to tell me; he was the prosecutor of Murder, Inc., the man who did the hard part of the job that gave William O'Dwyer such impetus in his mayoralty campaign. Of his principles I know nothing, but these are facts: He represented 30 men accused of murder in the first, when he was a defense attorney, and none got the chair, and he sent every leading member of Murder, Inc., to the hot seat, as an assistant D. A.

Near the end of the trial The Dasher did one of the most stupid things ever seen in a court of law. He was sitting in the witness chair telling about a 1928 assault trial in which he had been involved and he had been claiming he had been forced into the trial without his lawyer being present. Judge Franklin W. Taylor handed the lie to him about this. The Dasher's lawyer then got into an argument about it with Judge Taylor—when, suddenly, Abbando half-rose from

GAINING MOMENTUM!

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

"Ah—there's good news tonight!" You have probably heard this many a time if ever you have listened to Gabriel Heatter on your radio.

I wonder whether good, old Gabe said his "good news" spiel with very much emphasis when he heard that a superior court judge had just awarded $27,500 to Alex Tyburski of Brookfield, Conn., against Mrs. Sadie Heatter, wife of the broadcaster.

It seems that Mr. T. (I shall not again impose the full spelling of his name on the typewriter), was driving a loaded hay-wagon down Whisconner Hill in Brookfield.

A truck, driven by Holland Zeno, an employee on the Heatter farm near Brookfield, came so close to the hay wagon that the horses bolted, ran away and threw M. T. to the ground.

The Dasher was, I guess, typical of the whole bunch of cut-throats. He was a onetime ball-player without a great deal of imagination who, all through his trial, was morose because "I'm gonna miss the first night ball game of the season." In the Turkus-Feder book, there is a vivid account of this trial, and in re-reading it recently I kept wondering to myself if little Frank had seen any of it. He must have been about six, then.

"On trail for his life," Feder adroitly, almost shaking his head in print, he had threatened the court, just as if the judge were some slow-paying shylock customer or a contact from the mob!

It took the jury only two hours and two minutes to condemn The Dasher and Maione, his co-defendant, to death, on what the newspapermen call murder one. They were hard and tough as they stood in court and heard the judge say it—but a day later, going through Grand Central station on the way to the train for Sing Sing, they came apart. They whimpered and hid their faces from the photographers, and protested to the reporters they were innocent.

I wonder—did 6-year old little Frank come to the train to see his father off, on that last trip? Probably not. He was probably sitting in a classroom in some Brooklyn school and he had no idea in the world that already, before he had brushed the sleep from his eyes that morning, he had two strikes on him. If somebody wants to come to me and talk to me about the arraignment of little Frank Abbando on a gun rap, and say that bad blood will tell—he can save his breath. I won't listen. The kid never even got to bat in this game.

The Essential Struggle

An appreciable number of political leaders in both parties as well as internationalists who belong to neither party are anxious that the foreign policy pursued by the State Department should not be altered, come what may. They would prefer to prevent altogether or to limit as far as they can a free and open discussion of the Acheson policies, the Marshall Plan, the ECA hand-outs, the Korean War and the China fiasco. It is for this reason that so many of the old New Dealers, as distinct from the Truman Fair Dealers, are concerning themselves with Republican rather than Democratic politics. They are sure that the Democratic Party will defend the Acheson position; they cannot be sure that the Republicans will do. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., more than a year ago, before it was an immediate political question, stated this program when he said:

"If all we had now to consider was American opinion, we could unhesitatingly say that the freest debate on foreign policy would without doubt be good. But we cannot build a wall around the United States and confine this discussion solely to the ears and eyes of the American people. What we say here is heard and read—and misinterpreted—all over the world—and the reaction of the world closely affects American welfare."

Yet one of the two principal values of the Presidential election, every fourth year, is that it gives to the people an opportunity to participate directly in a choice of policy. It is to meet this right of the people that the political parties not only offer candidates but platforms, not only personalities but statements of political principle and purpose. Under the American scheme every election is, in effect, a referendum.

Since 1936, the American people have had no opportunity to debate, with any degree of thoroughness, policies which have brought them two wars, the huge burden of a more than $260,000,000,000 national debt, increasing taxes, depreciated currency, a budget that this year will probably reach $100,000,000,000 and the huge loss of life. Those who sought such a discussion in the elections of 1940, 1944, 1948 were beset by isolationists, if not Fascists.

It would seem futile to hold an election if these matters are not to be discussed and debated in detail, with a hard hammering of the facts to bring out the truth. An election without debate would be no more than a change of personalities at the top, with a continuance of policy and probably of those officials in office capable of and willing to carry out the old policies.

Senator Lodge amplified his concept in this paragraph:

"Senators have recently calmly discussed what places we might have to bomb—places whose inhabitants we still hope might have a common cause with us. This does not make friends for us abroad, however much it may reassure people at home. If we do not discuss these matters, our debate may lack realism and may not give reassurance, but at least it will not mean the loss of potential partners should a future conflict occur."

Our problem, according to him, is that if the American people are told the truth and discuss it, it will annoy our allies. Therefore, it is essential that the truth not be discussed. In a word, now more than six years after the war, the American people are to be told to continue to give blank checks to Great Britain and France as they were told, during the war, to give blank checks to Soviet Russia—to the tune of $11,000,000,000 in cash and an empire in the Teheran and Yalta agreements.

This philosophy is designed to protect those who have a vested interest in their own mistakes. W. Averell Harriman, for instance, has played a primary role in our relations with Russia which anyone can see have gone sour. Yet, he has never once admitted that his counsel might have been at fault. He continues to manipulate American policy and to encourage expenditures on a vast scale, until even Senator Tom Connally is angered by his complacency.

The problem then is to keep the debate on the foreign policy a continuing one, without regard to candidates and yet without imperiling the security of the country.

Try And Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

A young man graduated with every honor in sight from one of those schools in high pressure salesmanship conducted by big life insurance companies, and imbued with vigor and all the gimmicks he had learned, called on his first real prospect. What's more, he sold him a whopping big policy. The company, however, was not pleased. It appears that in order to close the deal, he had talked the client to death.

When Sam Himmelf, the genial paper magnate, decided to attend a nudist convention, he made a thorough job of it. On the way to the camp he even stripped his gears.

When David Dempsey learned that this daily feature is now being carried in papers in England, the Philippines, and Japan he commented, "Distribution certainly follows the gag."

During 1951, the average American family consumed 24 tons of food.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Washington — Maryland Republican leaders are in the process of taking a leaf out of the "me-too" campaign book which lost the 1948 elections for the GOP's national ticket. If they follow through on the process, they probably will be licked all down the line.

Republicans won the governorship, a Senate seat (formerly held by veteran Democratic Senator Millard Tydings) and many other offices in Maryland in 1950. But they did it by waging a fighting "give 'em hell" campaign, not by any Casper Milquetoast operation like the 1948 national GOP campaign.

This year's big political prize in the Old Line State is the Senate seat now held by Democratic Senator Herbert R. O'Connor, who has announced that he is retiring from the political wars. The State's Democratic machine has pretty well agreed that its candidate for the job is going to be Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser, who is currently serving his 14th year in the House of Representatives.

The Republicans have not decided yet, but will do so in a State convention to be held May 21. The two top-ranking candidates are Rep. J. Glenn Beall, now serving his fifth term in the House, and H. Grady Gore, a businessman in neighboring Montgomery county. Three other candidates for the nomination are Mayor Herman L. Mills of Hagerstown, Baltimore county businessman Roslyn A. Blunt, and political unknown Thomas Han-kinson.

Beall, a "follow-the-leader" politician, has the sub rosa backing of Governor Theodore R. McKeldin. Gore has little or no organization support but is waging an active and forthright campaign for the nomination and is gathering considerable rank-and-file support. In the highly possible event of a convention deadlock between Beall and Gore, Mills, a long-time Republican leader in western Maryland, might well get the nod.

Republican Senator John Marshall Butler, who pulled the political upset of 1950 by upsetting Tydings, originally leaned toward Gore's candidacy. But Gov. McKeldin is reported to have spoken some words of advice to the senator in private, with the result that he now leans toward Rep. Beall.

Butler seems to be suffering from political amnesia. He seems to have forgotten that the way he won his seat was by hammering away at the whitewash conducted by Tydings of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's charges of Communism in government. He seems to now go along with the McKeldin theory that Republicans can win in Maryland by default, by sidestepping issues, by carefully refraining from making anybody angry. They ought to know better. If they don't, somebody ought to call their attention to the facts of political life as evidenced by such campaigns as that of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

Butler's 1950 campaign was managed by a shrewd mid-westerner, Jon Jonkel. Guided by Jonkel and abetted by Sen. McCarthy, Butler blasted Tydings into obscurity by hammering at his coddling of Communists and his mishandling of defense funds. To his surprise, Butler found himself elected to the Senate.

Tydings, of course, screamed "foul," and rigged a Senate investigation of the Butler campaign during which he, Tydings, complained loudly and at length about such things as a tabloid newspaper distributed by Butler backers.

Butler could—and should—have complained just as loudly, and with more justification, about leaflets distributed by Tydings which were replete with factual misrepresentations. But unfortunately, as soon as he became a senator, Butler abandoned the fighting qualities which had won for him, and adopted instead a completely defensive attitude.

Today that phrase "completely defensive" typifies the attitude of those in control of the State's Republican party. They want all Republican candidates to be nice people, not to step on any toes, and to pussyfoot around so they won't make anybody mad.

All of which is fine, with only one drawback, as far as the Republicans are concerned. That one drawback is that if they continue this way, they'll probably wake up on the morning of Nov. 5 and discover that Rep. Lansdale Sasser has become Senator Lansdale Sasser.

The expression, "my hat is in the ring," comes from an early custom when persons participating in Spanish bull fights cast their hats into the ring before entering the arena.

The National Bureau of Standards, in Washington, D. C., has instruments that can measure how much a steel bar is bent by a fly alighting on one end.

10 Years Ago 20 The Once Over

—by C. H. Westbrook

Blackout — A blackout brings complete darkness in all of Monroe County and as far as Milford in Pike County. Observers say the blackout was perfect.

Home — Pvt. Wesley C. McCoy, stationed at Pine Camp, N. Y., spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Kresge, Mount Pocono.

Farwell Party — Mrs. Myrtle Werkheiser, N. 5th St., gave a party for her son, Lefty Werkheiser, who is leaving for army service at Camp Mead.

G.A.R.—Victoria Council, No. 165, D. of A., met in IOOF Hall in Stroudsburg; Mrs. Jennie Meixell won the prize of the evening. The degree team will meet at the home of Nettie Overpeck.

Postmaster — Eight Republicans seek position of postmaster in Stroudsburg; William D. Heilig, Harry Oldford, Harry G. Snyder, William Walton, Elmer Walton, Harry Werkheiser, George Rascner and Vere J. Banks. In Delaware Water Gap there are said to be several applicants, among them Elmer Young and Joseph H. Graves.

Sunrise Service — St. Johns Lutheran Church will follow custom by holding a sunrise service, 6:15 A. M., on Easter Sunday. A special program will be offered by the choir of 22 voices. The choir director is C. H. Wetterau and Mrs. Milton Keller will preside at the piano. In addition to the choruses there will be solos by Misses Regina Waltz, G. H. Wetterau and Raymond Snyder.

E. S. — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wether, of Camden, are guests of the former's brother, Fred Wether.

Hollywood

—by Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—On your television receiver sits a little dish of coins (if, that is, you trust your wife and kids not to borrow indiscriminately).

The picture on the screen is dancing and jiggling like crazy. You drop several coins in a little slot. A little meter gadget on the coin receptacle, that also sits on top of your receiver, tells you how much.

Instantly the picture clears up and the sound comes on. (An announcer, telling you this was a pay-as-you-see show, was all you could hear up to then.) You settle back and enjoy the show—movie, sports, variety, or what-not.

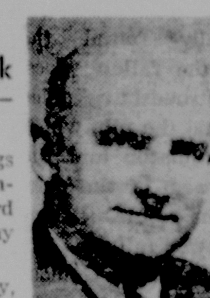

That's the latest system of TV entertainment paid for by the viewer. It's called Telemeter, it's manufactured here, and it was shown off to Hollywood newsmen and dignitaries the other day with all the usual trimmings except cocktails and searchlights.

Cecil B. DeMille was impressed. He called it "a terrific method of distribution." Incidentally, Paramount, the company he works for, owns 50 percent of Telemeter.

C. B., it should be added wouldn't say whether this system or its rival, Phonevision, looked better to him. Phonevision, if put into practice, would enable you to buy a television show simply by ordering it over your telephone. You'd be billed at the end of the month.

"But there's a feeling of people in the entertainment field," a Telemeter engineer argued, "that you can't sell entertainment on a credit basis. Our way, you pay for a program now and you don't have a billing problem."

The little copper box that sits on the receiver is sheer magic.

The Real News Newsreel

Latest reports from the Newbold Morris Expedition into the Forest Wastes of Washington show it to be caught deeper in the icepack than predicted. Last minute tidings indicate its location as somewhere between Cold Shoulder Valley, No Subpoena Gulch and the Great McCarran Glacier. An Eskimo guide who succeeded in getting sleds back to a trading post reported that the Eskimo dogs had been poisoned, the runners stripped from the sleds and the supplies of pemmican and gun-drops sabotaged. He said the party had been reduced to eating its own questionnaires. Mr. Morris, located by flares, was standing chin deep in a snow-bank into which he had struck a sign reading "Keep Your Shirt On," a reminder somewhat superfluous considering the temperature. A plane from the Senate Judiciary Committee flew over the party yesterday and dropped what Newbold hoped were supplies, but which turned out to be just another load of ice.

The Republican members of the Judiciary Committee seem determined not to take any chance on having a hot campaign issue blighted by prompt investigation and cleanup. The Morris questionnaire, which has scores of government jobs running a fever, ask for a statement of all income of self and immediate family for past five years, where from, what for and how come? But it omits the one proof of excessive wealth, a straight answer to the question "Have you ordered a shrimp cocktail lately, and, if so, give details of your financing plan."

The questionnaire asks the facts on any money in excess of $500 won by gambling in any year. (If won in a three-horse parlay all will be forgiven and the winner named the Man of the Year.) Martha Roundtree says that 98 percent of the letters following "Keep Posted's

The price of each show pops up on little illuminated numbers actuated by impulses from the broadcasting station. A fellow comes around every month and takes the coins out of the box. He also extracts a piece of recording tape that registers what programs you have bought. The container takes any coin from a nickel to 50 cents. Two dollars is the most you could pay for a single show.

Glen Brook Country Club Is Setting For Formal Dance

A formal dance at Glen Brook Country club on Saturday night climaxed the season for the two dancing classes of Mrs. Mary Henning which have been meeting throughout the winter.

Bill Diehl's orchestra furnished the music for the waltzes, rhumbas, foxtrots, square dances and jitterbug numbers, in which the young dancers demonstrated they had learned their lessons well.

Prizes in special dances were awarded to James Barthold and Kay Shook in the foxtrot contest; Donald Knickman and Ann Morganthau for both the jitterbug and shoe dance; Tony Harlacher and Ann Shafer for the elimination dance, and Richard Hintze and Martha Williams the door prizes.

The formal party atmosphere was heightened by the bright dresses of the girls, many of them in their first long dresses. Punch and cookies were served. Many parents stopped in during the course of the dance.

In addition to those shown above at the dinner party, those present included Marie Cohen, Martha Williams, Susan Harmon, Sally Rayburn, Kay Shook, Meggie Denning, John Crandall, Robert McConnell, Thomas Metzger, Richard Hintze, James Barthold, Kenneth Barthold and Thomas Rinehart.

Members of the classes not present were: Mary Frances Frankfield, Gretchen and Henry Jordan, Bobbie Shutt, Betsy Stevenson, Laurence Flagler and Michael Cohen.

Analomink Young Couple Exchange Vows

Lawrence Hardy Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hardy Sr., and Miss Adelaide Batchler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Batchler, all of Analomink, were married Saturday at 6:45 p.m.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ralph Feltham, pastor of the Analomink Methodist church, at his residence, 260 Prospect St., East Stroudsburg. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Justin Cramer, also of Analomink.

Mr. Hardy is employed by Robert Vogt, East Stroudsburg contractor. They will make their home with the bridegroom's parents for the next few months.

Teen-Agers Are Invited To School For Parents

The School for Parents which will be held tonight at 8 at the East Stroudsburg Junior High school is open to all teen-agers and their parents. Featuring Dr. Raymond Patouillet, assistant professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, as moderator, there will be a teen-age panel to discuss common problems.

The committee, charged by the American Association of University Women, to arrange for the School for Parents will meet for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cohen, Thomas St., tonight before the panel. Mrs. Wendell Wicks and Mrs. Elmer Veety are co-chairmen.

Bus Time For Flower Show

Plans have all been completed for the visit of the members and friends of the Monroe County Garden club to the Philadelphia flower show tomorrow.

For the information of those contemplating making the trip, it was announced last night that the bus would leave the D. L. & W. railroad station, East Stroudsburg, at 7:30 a. m. and the Indian Queen, Stroudsburg, at 7:45.

Those desiring may take box lunches. It was said, thus conserving time.

Faulsticks' Are Wedded Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Faulstick, of Bethlehem, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at the Saylorburg fire hall Saturday night with between 350 and 400 guests in attendance.

The tables were all decorated in yellow and gold including the one loaded with gifts and that centered with a four-tier wedding cake. Refreshments were served buffet style. There was special music for entertainment and dancing and also group singing.

Rev. Adan A. Bohner, of Kunkletown, was master of ceremonies. Mr. Faulstick was a native of Ross township, son of George and Mary Ann Faulstick, and is a carpenter employed by the Howard Schwartz Corp., Bethlehem.

Mrs. Faulstick was the daughter of James and Ellen Bender and a native of Plainfield Twp., Northampton county. They were married March 22, 1902, by Rev. C. W. T. Strasser, at the parsonage of the Hamilton Lutheran church. They lived in Saylorburg and Wind Gap.

Mr. Faulstick was one of 12 children, 10 of whom are living. Included are Edwin, William and Lewis Faulstick and Mrs. Nettie Bush, of Saylorburg. Mrs. Faulstick has a brother and sister, the latter being Mrs. Alvin Altemose, Saylorburg RD.

Never saw Hattie Walters more enthusiastic about anything than she is about the beautiful costumes brought into the store by Mrs. Leo Banta for use during the 77th anniversary celebration. Hattie has real reason to enthuse... they are exquisite. One is obviously a wedding gown of a long bygone day, creamy in color and rich in texture. Even Hattie, who knows all about materials, fails to recognize some of these fine fabrics. And what workmanship! The frills and gathers, the yards of fullness in the skirts, the elaborate braid and bead trim, the carefully tailored linings, would tax the patience of most modern seamstresses past all endurance.

One thing we are learning from these gowns that arrive daily in the store, is that women cut a far different figure yesterday than they do today. Most of the gowns are amply long for even our tallest girls. But those waists! When even Mabel Anderson comes within two inches of closing a basque, one needs no further assurance that the owner was slimmer than the proverbial willow. Maybe the answer was in the corsets with their formidable steel staves... or in the fact that women who had eight and nine children were too busy to grow plump. That still doesn't keep us from marveling how they ever achieved those families in the first place!

There's no doubt about it, there was elegance aplenty in the "good old days." Seems to me that a lot of glamour has slipped out of our lives with the passing of the feathered fan, the lace fichu, the dainty mitts, the beaded reticule, and those other accessories of yesterday that are revived only occasionally as a whimsy of the night. From the practical point of view, however, we should be quite content to let bygones be bygones. Can you imagine ironing those dresses? Pity the mother of seven daughters! And those were the days before dry cleaning, weren't they?

Well, Thursday night is our Employees' Party, and I'm almost ready. I've finally located a dress that will do, and Mrs. John Sutton, of Mount Pocono, has offered the use of a black feather fan and a piece of jewelry that were once her mother's. All that's lacking now is a lace shawl, mitts and hoops. If anyone can help locate these essentials, I'll be most grateful. And if you haven't hoops... please, could you just hustle me a bustle?

Of Soil Is Made Easy

Joseph H. Andre, Choremaster dealer, also is dealer for the famous English manufactured Howard Rotavator. The Howard Rotavator is backed by 28 years of experience in 65 countries. They offer complete cultivation with one implement.

The Howard Rotavator "Gem" can do an efficient job in any soil condition, no matter how tall or how tough the weeds may be, the Gem can chop them and disperse them evenly throughout the soil. The unique Howard patent motor prevents clogging even under severe conditions. Width of cultivation is 20 inches and depth is 8 inches.

A powerful small edition of the "Gem" is the Rotavator "Bantam". It is ideal for the amateur grower, market gardener, greenhouse work, etc. Rotavation is the last work in rotary cultivation. The remarkable Rotavators can operate in heavy weeds, stoney ground, tough sod, as well as do all jobs—easy ones and difficult ones—better! The 3 H.P. "Bantam" is a new addition to the Rotavator family. It has proven itself. Everyone is amazed at what the "Bantam" can do. It is ruggedly constructed, powerful, very simple to operate, economical and most reasonably priced...

Claude Cyphers To Handle
Diamond T School Buses

Claude S. Cyphers, 548 Ann St., Stroudsburg, direct factory dealer for the Diamond T Motor Car Co., will also handle Diamond T school buses in addition to the complete truck line.

Mr. Cyphers pointed out Diamond T school buses are "universally approved for the safety of the pupils and for the safety of the investment!"

When school officials select school buses, they naturally consider utmost safety and lowest operating costs of primary importance. After all, Mr. Cyphers stated, the make that gives them both is obviously the best value for their tax dollars.

On both counts, Mr. Cyphers continued, Diamond T carries the hearty approval of scores of Federal, state, county and municipal purchasing bodies... "an approval confirmed by long-time records of hundreds of privately owned Diamond T fleets the country over."

All Diamond T bus chassis conform to every requirement of National school bus standards, but they also offer many important features not available in any other make. In addition - to long-lived heavy-duty construction in every part and unit, Diamond T alone provides the "quick-detachable" front fenders for easy accessibility to engine and accessories. Diamond T springs are bushed with live rubber so that no greasing is ever required.

Pedal-slots are cup-sealed. Large generators are of 40 amperes capacity. Engine performance substantially exceeds code requirements in all cases, and all engines carry "sealed-unit" viscous vibration dampers.

Postal Card Tax Repealed By Government

East Stroudsburg Postmaster Norman Gregory said last night that the ten percent tax on the purchase of 50 or more postal cards has been repealed.

Effective today with the opening of the postoffice windows, the price of all postal cards, regardless of amount purchased, will be a flat two cents each.

News of the change came from the U.S. Postoffice department, Gregory said, and applies to all offices in the nation.

The ten percent "tax" was imposed at the same time the price of the postcard, one of the final remnants of a past era, was changed from a penny to two cents. Merchants and clubs who use the postcard in large quantities objected to the tax as "unfair."

As a solution to the "tax every purchase of 50 cards or more" stipulation, buyers began sending different persons to the post office with orders to buy only 49 cards. In this case the 10 per cent penalty was avoided.

The removal of the tax was the second major change in rules governing postoffice procedures during the past month.

Another ruling lowered the maximum weight for air mail packages overseas to two pounds. The domestic maximum was not changed.

Truman Attends Divine Services At Navy Chapel

Key West, Fla. (AP)—President Truman and his staff attended Protestant divine services at the tiny white Navy chapel here yesterday.

In the group which rode over from the "Little White House" to the chapel was Clark M. Clifford, former special counsel to the President and now a Washington lawyer.

The chaplain, Lt. Com. Harold F. Menges, appealed for a positive Christianity as the hope of the nation. He declared that Christianity brings happiness and a rest for living.

After church services Truman and his party drove to the beach for a swim and sunbath.

REV. EDWARD T. Houston, pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness church, 208 Main St., Stroudsburg, announces that a series of revival meetings will be opened March 26 through April 6. Rev. C. C. Mc Masters, pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness church, Siler City, N. C., will be the evangelist. Services will be held each night at 7:30.

Head Of S.A. To Induct Two Local Girls

Gen. and Mrs. Albert Orshorn of London, England, are in the United States to conduct special meetings in various sections of the country. A territorial congress in New York from March 29 to April 2 will be one of the highlights.

The opening meeting is on Saturday night, when there will be a gigantic enrollment of soldiers from the 11 eastern states. Soldiers will be enrolled from a great many corps; among them will be two East Stroudsburg girls, Corps Cadets Joyce Leap and Ramona Thek of the East Stroudsburg Salvation Army will be honored by being accepted as members of the Salvation army by its general.

Following special meetings on Sunday there will be two days of officers' councils when about 1,700 officers from the 11 eastern states will meet together.

Dog School To Resume Next Month

Training classes given by the Monroe County Dog Obedience group are scheduled to resume April 2 at 7 p. m. at the YMCA.

Announcement of the 1952 date was made yesterday by Donna E. Billard, training director of the group. Classes will meet, according to Miss Billard, each Tuesday for the remainder of the ten-week course.

During the training program the dogs are taught to stay at the handler's left side on or off leash during walks, to lie down on command, to stay where left without being tied, to come when called and various other rules of canine obedience.

Since the inception of the program last summer, the obedience group has made successful "show dogs" of at least two of its trainees.

Dr. W. A. Casper's "Knightscrest" and Miss Billard's "Knightscrest Alanna" have been consistent winners in shows since their graduation from the obedience classes.

In addition, the national magazine "Dog World" commended the organization for its "good will policy" which provides for no distinction between purebreds and mixed-breeds during training.

School Names Honor Pupils

The honor roll for pupils of Middle Smithfield township school for the fourth marking period was announced yesterday by Principal Joseph M. Kulick.

Both "high" and "second" honor pupils were named.

Grade 8—Joseph Murray, and Leslie Rosenberger, high; Edward Regina, second; Grade 7—Rita Fish, high; Grade 6—Victoria Hoehne, high; Lawrence Belge, Dorothy Rosenberger and John Regina.

Grade 5—John Balmoo, James Gerard, Kenneth Johns, Nicholas Miller, John Shoemaker, Lorraine Belge, Myrna Fish, Cynthia Summers, all second honors.

Grade 4—Jack King, high; Grade 3—Thomas Whittaker, high; Sharon Summers, Patricia Howey, Robert Whittaker and Lawrence Fenical, second.

Grade 2—Bernadina Walker and Chloe Richards, high; Grade 1—Janie Summers and Judy Summers, second.

Second Big Fire Occurs At Lebanon

Lebanon (AP)—An early-morning fire swept a four-story wholesale food warehouse in Lebanon's business district yesterday, causing damage estimated at $400,000.

Nine volunteer fire companies battled for more than two hours to prevent Lebanon's second major fire in 17 days from spreading to adjoining buildings and residences. It was four blocks from the heart of the city.

Lewis Reinhold, manager of the Sterling Wholesale Corp., who estimated the damage, said most of the loss was to foodstuffs damaged by water and smoke. He said the cause of the blaze was not determined.

Police said some $50 damage was caused to the truck, operated by Edward Romansky, 250 Second St., Stroudsburg, and $150 to the south-bound sedan of Dean Forsberg, 20, Williamsport. Neither driver was injured.

Truck Involved In Accident

Allentown—A Stroudsburg man's truck was damaged in the collision of the truck and a sedan Saturday morning at the intersection of Routes 29 and 63 at Green Lane here.

Police said some $50 damage was caused to the truck, operated by Edward Romansky, 250 Second St., Stroudsburg, and $150 to the south-bound sedan of Dean Forsberg, 20, Williamsport. Neither driver was injured.

Divergence Of Assessments Great For Properties Of Same Sale Value

(This is the twenty second in a series of articles based on actual real estate sales in boroughs and townships and the amounts at which those properties were assessed. Figures were taken from official county records.)

By Leonard Randolph

Four Hamilton township properties which sold in 1951 were assessed at $1,300 each.

These properties, according to official sale records, were worth from $3,000 to $13,000—yet all four were assessed at exactly the same amount. One of the properties had a sale value of $3,000; the second sold for $10,000; the third for $12,500 and the fourth for $13,000.

The properties were assessed at from 10 to 43 per cent of their selling price.

On a month-by-month basis, Hamilton's 34 typical sales reveal a seemingly township-wide variety of unequal assessed valuation. For 1951 its properties were assessed at from 3 per cent to 95 per cent of their individual market value.

In January a $10,000 Saylorsburg farm was assessed at $2,105 or an assessment percentage of 21. A "stone quarry", located on Stroudsburg RD, sold for $2,500 and was assessed at $300 or 12 per cent of its sale price.

Two February assessments stayed within three per cent of each other. A $5,000 house (no location given) was assessed at $820 or 16 per cent; a $5,500 house (no location) was assessed at $1,050 or 19 per cent of value.

A Snyder'sville farm which sold for $6,500 in March had an assessed value of $1,150 or 17 per cent of the sale price. A tract of land (with house) which sold for $5,500 during the same month was assessed at $1,900—35 per cent.

During April and May Hamilton assessment percentages varied 53 per cent—from a low of 7 per cent to a high of 60.

The first township property sold during those two months was a $6,000 farm which was assessed at $600 or 10 per cent of its value. The second sale set the low—a $7,000 farm, assessed at only $500 or 7 per cent of its value. With the third transaction the assessment percentage jumped to 50 per cent of the sale price.

During November and December 1951 assessed valuations ran rampant in Hamilton. Within a period of ninety days the assessment percentage established for "sold" properties raced from the year's low of 3 per cent to the year's high of 95.

The 3 per cent assessment was set on a farm which sold for $6,500. It was assessed at only $200. A short time later a tract of land which sold for $1,000 (less than one-sixth the price of the lowest-assessed property) was assessed at $50 ($50 more than the aforementioned property). This meant that an assessment percentage of 5 per cent of market value had been set on a tract of land only a few short weeks after a more expensive tract had been assessed at only 3 per cent of its market value.

of the property—when a $1,000 tract of land was assessed at $500.

The percentage continued to rise when a fourth property—a $1,500 Twin Mountain house was assessed at $800 or 53 per cent of the market value. With the fifth transaction the monthly high was established—a $1,000 tract of land was assessed at 60 per cent of its sale price ($600).

The assessments swooped back down again with the remaining two property sales, however. A $20,500 house had an assessed value of only $2,000 or 9 per cent of market value; a $3,000 house was assessed at only $400 or 13 per cent.

For June 1951 the local assessor established assessed values of 20 and 11 per cent of market value on two properties. The first of these was a $3,500 land tract on Stroudsburg RD which was assessed at $700 or 20 per cent. The second: a $7,000 Stroudsburg RD farm assessed at $800 or 11 per cent of its sale price.

The sale property sold during July upon which an individual assessment was set was a $6,500 Twin Lakes cottage with an assessed value of $400 or 6 per cent of the market price.

Two properties sold during August, September and October were assessed at 50 and 10 per cent of the sale price listed. A 13-acre tract in Hamilton township sold for $1,000, was assessed at $500 or 50 per cent of its market value; a $1,500 township lot was assessed at only $150 or 10 per cent of the sale price.

During November and December 1951 assessed valuations ran rampant in Hamilton. Within a period of ninety days the assessment percentage established for "sold" properties raced from the year's low of 3 per cent to the year's high of 95.

The 3 per cent assessment was set on a farm which sold for $6,500. It was assessed at only $200. A short time later a tract of land which sold for $1,000 (less than one-sixth the price of the lowest-assessed property) was assessed at $50 ($50 more than the aforementioned property). This meant that an assessment percentage of 5 per cent of market value had been set on a tract of land only a few short weeks after a more expensive tract had been assessed at only 3 per cent of its market value.

By percentages the November-December assessments ran the gamut from 3 to 95. There were individual representations on all levels up and down the scale.

A $15,000 Stroudsburg RD farm was assessed at only $1,365 or 9 per cent of its sale price, for example, while a $3,000 house was assessed at $1,300 or 43 per cent of value.

A $36,000 house and farm was assessed at only $1,650 or 5 per cent of its market price. A $500 tract of land was assessed at $150 or 30 per cent of value.

A $2,000 house was assessed at $100 or 5 per cent; a $1,500 tract of land was assessed at $300 or 20 per cent.

A $6,000 house was assessed at $350 or 6 per cent of value; a $5,000 12-acre tract of land was assessed at $650 or 13 per cent.

A $500 land tract was assessed at $150 or 30 per cent of value while a $3,000 tract was assessed at only $450 or 15 per cent.

The three remaining $1,300 assessments (at 13, 10 and 10 per cent of value) mentioned at the beginning of this article, all occurred during the last two months of the year.

As has been previously stated, assessment percentages ranged from a low of 3 per cent to a high of 95 during the year. By percentages, they were divided as follows: one at 3; two at 5; two at 6; one at 7; two at 9; four at 10; one at 11; one at 12; three at 13; one at 15; one at 16 one at 17; one at 19; two at 20; one at 21; two at 30; one at 35; one at 43; two at 50; one at 53; one at 60; one at 95 per cent.

Total sales in Hamilton township during the year amounted to $192,000. Total assessments amount to $26,790 for the year. This means that, on the basis of the 34 sales studied here, Hamilton's real estate which changed hands during 1951 was assessed at an average 13.9 per cent of its market value.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

A conversation with veteran athletic observers in Monroe County the other day brought to the front the fact that athletic relationships between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg High schools are on the down-grade and apparently headed for nothing but disaster. The ideas presented by two gentlemen, who prefer to remain nameless, didn't come as idle talk, but rather with background material for support.

The facts that East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg High schools have been wrangling over a suitable football date for several seasons and that after two years of planning the two schools are unable to agree on a day on which to meet in baseball, are truly alarming. However, the added fact that the new Thanksgiving Day date for football is in effect only this year makes the present situation even more alarming.

If it has taken the two schools two years to get nowhere in arranging a date for baseball, just what does it mean in football? The two rival organizations have slightly more than a year to plan for the 1953 grid classic. No baseball in 1951 and 1952. Does this mean no football in 1953 and no basketball in 1954? The modern trend seems to indicate this, especially since the attitude displayed of late isn't of mutual agreement.

Baseball is a high school varsity sport and should be treated as such in all respect to those boys who play the game and the men who put in their time and energy in coaching the game. Baseball offers the most opportunity for gainful employment of any form of athletics today. There is absolutely no reason for Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg clashing in football and basketball and not in baseball. There is interest in the game in both boroughs and the boy who's ability is better shown on the baseball diamond than on the football field or basketball court is receiving unfair treatment.

As pointed out within these columns recently, the players baseball in the neighboring high schools, but not forward to a clash with the rival borough as much as the boy who does his stuff on the field of athletic combat in the autumn and winter months. At least two officials in the respective schools believe that the game should be played, but for some unknown reason, or should I say unpublished reason, the rivals can't get together on a suitable date, despite the fact, believe it or not, that negotiations on the 1952 diamond problem began last December.

Even though negotiations for a baseball meeting of the two clubs began before Christmas of 1951, a series of postponements of talks brings us right up to date, with absolutely nothing accomplished. No date, no prospects of a date and apparently no strong desire by either school to play the game are the net results to the moment of this writing. The more one dwells on this subject, the more apparent it becomes that the abolishing of a baseball game is a forerunner to almost virtual collapse of athletic relationship between the neighboring schools.

Both schools had no difficulty arranging baseball schedules through their respective leagues, but the open dates for one club is a day of operation for the second. An early season meeting of the two teams has been proposed and rejected and a late season meeting runs into school rules which prohibits interference with final examinations, graduation exercises and senior trips. East Stroudsburg also frowns on three athletic contests in any one week, which also virtually puts the crusher on hopes of playing the game this season.

A waiting game, as far as the baseball season is concerned, is plainly to blame. The trend was begun last year and carried over to this season and now is plainly shaking the athletic foundation constructed by the rival boroughs. The only baseball game that means anything to the sagging athletic funds of the two schools is treated as lightly as a wind blown feather, while games that mean absolutely nothing financially are booked, signed, sealed and delivered months in advance. Why?

I pointed out the other day, and I meant it sincerely, that the task of the schedule maker, regardless of college or high school, is to say the least, difficult. It calls for the constant hurdling of problems, conflicting dates and the time element. However, once again I ask authorities in both schools to forget past differences and launch anew an attempt to hold the baseball game this year, while East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg is blessed with the presence of Alden "Red" Fetherman. If you continue to find it impossible to play the baseball game this year, please take steps, and promptly, to show the people of this locality that the game will be played next season, and that the intense rivalry isn't going the way of the five-cent cigar.

Former Champs Feature Week's Ring Program

New York (AP)—Former champions Johnny Bratton and Ike Williams, who lost their titles last year within the space of seven days, face difficult tests this week in their comeback attempts.

Bratton, the former welterweight king from Chicago, makes another bid for a title shot at Kid Gavilan when he takes on sharp-shooting "Rocky" Castellani in a Madison Square Garden ten-rounder Friday night.

Williams, the scowling Trenton, N. J., bomber who held the lightweight title for six years, meets DeWitt's undefeated "Chuck" Davey in a ten-round go Wednesday in Chicago Stadium.

Short Time
Gavilan took the welter crown away from Bratton last May 18, and just one week later Jimmy Carter, then a comparative unknown, skyrocketed to fame by knocking out Williams for the lightweight title.

As usual, both the Wednesday and Friday night features will be broadcast and telecast nationally, starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

In meeting Castellani, Bratton will be up against one of the smartest middleweights in the business. The Luzerne, Pa., cutie is one of the best boxers around, and if he has any fault, it's his tendency to hit the deck when he's been solidly on the chin. Most always, "Rocky" recovers, however.

Monday
At New York, Phil Burton, St. Louis, vs Clarence Harbin, St. Louis, welters, eight; at Ogden, Utah, Rex Layne, Lewiston, Utah, vs Bill Peterson, Chicago, heavies, ten; at Baltimore, Rocky Jones, Chester, Pa., vs young Harry Willis, South Bend, Ind., heavies, ten.

Tuesday
At Los Angeles, Lou Williams, Kansas City, vs Carlos Chavez, Los Angeles, light heavies, ten; at Newark, N. J., Omelio Agramonte, Havana, vs Bill Gilliam, Newark, heavies, eight.

Wednesday
At Chicago, Chuck Davey, Detroit, vs Ike Williams, Trenton, N. J., welters, ten.

Thursday
At Philadelphia, N. J., Charley Williams, Newark, N. J., vs Billy Whye, Philadelphia, welters, eight; at Akron, Ronnie Delaney, Akron, vs Otis Graham, Philadelphia, middies, ten; at Minneapolis, "Rocky" Graziano, New York, vs Roy Wouters, Vancouver, B. C., middies, ten; at New York, Jimmy Wilde, New York, vs Henry Winchman, New York, lights, eight.

Friday
At New York, Johnny Bratton, Chicago, vs Rocky Castellani, Luzerne, Pa., welters, ten.

Giants Trim Oakland

Oakland, Calif. (AP)—The New York Giants won their fifth straight game here yesterday behind the shutout pitching of Sal Maglie and Roger Bowman, defeating the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast league, 5 to 0.

A's Nip Senators

West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP)—Dave Philley singled to center with the bases loaded in the ninth inning yesterday to enable the Philadelphia Athletics to beat the Washington Senators 3-2 and snap a six-game exhibition losing streak.

Dykes Blasts Practice Of Split-Squad Training Games

West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP)—Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Philadelphia Athletics is against split-squad practice of major league teams in spring training and he urged a ban on the two-a-day bookings.

"If I had my way," said the cigar smoking leader of the Athletics, "there would be a rule against any practice as we followed last weekend when we played the Phillies, Cincinnati Reds and Detroit Tigers on the west coast of Florida, and at the same time engaged Baltimore and Brooklyn in these parts."

Dykes said something ought to be done about these spring schedules. "No team should be permitted to book more than one

ESSTC Lists Spring Schedule For Quartet Of Varsity Sports

Nine baseball games are listed on the spring sports schedule at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, as released yesterday by Oscar J. Liljenstein, director of athletics. The schedule also includes tennis and track for men and women's tennis.

The baseball team, under the guidance of Coach George Ockershausen, will play five of its games on the road and four on the home field. The season is scheduled to open on Saturday, April 19, at Kutztown.

Tennis
Eight tennis matches are scheduled to be played by the ESSTC men, five on the home court and three on foreign terrain. Coach Frank Grimm will once again be in charge of the racket wielders.

The track contingent, under the watchful eye of Coach Howard DeNike, is scheduled to take part in only three dual meets, two on the home track and one away. However, the ESSTC track and field stars will also see action in the Penn Relays and the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Track championship. The track team opens its season on Saturday, April 19, against West Chester, on Normal Hill.

Miss Mary Whitenight will lead the ESSTC lassies through five tennis matches, two on the home court and three on the road.

St. James Wins Catholic Laurels
Pittsburgh, (AP)—St. James High School of Pittsburgh wallpied St. Mary's of Williamsport 69-55 yesterday to win its third straight Catholic class "B" state basketball title.

Forward Frank Spiezna tallied 22 markers for the victors. It was St. James' sixty-fifth straight victory over a span of three years.

Four St. Mary's players, Paul Glunk, Paul Hamm, Jim Edgeworth and Carly Meyer, delivered scoring honors. Glunk collected 13 points.

Cards Slam Tigers, 12-1

Lakeland, Fla. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals jumped on starter Ken Johnson, newly-acquired Detroit Tiger lefthander, for ten runs in the first two innings to batter the Tigers 12-1 in an exhibition game yesterday.

Large Crowd
A crowd of 3,616, largest in Henley Field's history, saw Stan Musial poke a one-run double, Enos Slaughter a two-run single, and Steve Bilko a two-run double in the first inning before Johnson could retire a batter.

A's Farm Limmer

West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP)—First baseman Lou Limmer, the rookie Philadelphia Athletics expected to make the big leagues with a bang, was farmed out to Ottawa of the International League yesterday as Manager Jimmy Dykes dropped eight players from his squad.

Reds Down Braves
Tampa, Fla. (AP)—Home runs by Ted Kluszewski and Joe Adcock sparked the Cincinnati Reds to a 5 to 4 exhibition baseball victory over the Boston Braves yesterday.

Majeski were so-called regulars. Brooklyn's Charley Dresen was really put out. He threatened not to play the game. But the sound of some 2,000 people already in the stands changed his mind. Dresen got even a few days later. He sent only two regulars with the Brooklyn team that visited West Palm Beach. You see, in these exhibition games the home team collects all the loot.

"The truth is," said Dykes, "we just don't have enough outstanding players to go in for two games at a time. What team can split its regulars and play two games in one day and not disappoint the fans at both places?" he asked.

St. John's, Santa Clara Pull Upsets

Associated Press

Giant-killing St. John's of Brooklyn and unheralded Santa Clara gun for more surprises in the NCAA basketball tournament at Seattle tomorrow night against Illinois and Kansas, two tournament-hardened, experienced teams.

St. John's, which sprang the basketball upset of the year Saturday night in whipping Kentucky, 64-57, will meet Illinois, 74-68 conqueror of Duquesne, for the eastern championship. Santa Clara, whose 56-53 triumph over Wyoming was only a shade less surprising, takes on Kansas and all-America center Clyde Lovellette, whose 44 points led to Jay Hawks to a 74-55 romp over St. Louis. That's for the western championship.

The winners will meet Wednesday night for the National Collegiate championship.

St. John's stunning victory, achieved on careful control of the ball and unheralded, accurate shooting, temporarily ended Kentucky's dominance of the NCAA title tournament. The Wildcats from the Blue Grass, ranked first in the Associated Press poll of the nation's top ten teams, had won the NCAA crown three times in the last four years. They'd beaten St. John's 59-43, en route to last year's championship, and humiliated the Brooklyn Redmen earlier this season with an 81-40 shellacking.

Forgotten
All that was forgotten, however, as St. John's tenth in the poll—led first Bob Zawoluk and then Jack McMahon for hook shots and layups that the Kentuckians were powerless to stop. Big Zeke, hitting on 12 of 21 shots, scored 16 points in each half for a total of 32, and McMahon finished with 18.

The defeat snapped a 23-game Kentucky winning streak. They lost regular season games to Minnesota and St. Louis, but this was their first NCAA tournament loss since City College of New York beat them in 1950.

Santa Clara, which brought a lackluster 15-10 record to the tourney, followed its Friday night upset of UCLA, Pacific Coast champions, with a come-from-behind win over Wyoming, kingpins of the Skyline Conference. Trailing 3-14 early in the game and 24-27 at half-time, Santa Clara shot ahead as freshman Ken Sears made a foul shot, sophomore Herb Schoenstien tipped in a basket and Sears scored on a long shot.

After this burst, they scored 25 points in the third quarter and led by 49-38 when Leftey Esau sparked a Wyoming rally. Esau hit on five straight shots and Moe Radovich added a pair of layups to cut the Broncos' edge to 54-52. At this point Santa Clara went into a successful "freeze" which insured the victory.

Illinois, ranked second in the AP poll, simply had too much balance and all-around strength for Duquesne, which was ranked only two places lower.

The Big Ten champions couldn't stop lanky Jim Tucker from scoring—he was high in the game with 29 points—but big Bob Peterson and Johnny Kerr got most of the rebounds.

Feed Ball
These two fed the ball to the Illini forwards enough for Irv Bemoras and five feet, ten inch Jim Bredar to lead the winners' attack. Most of Bredar's points, for the second straight game, came in the second half, when Illinois pulled away gradually from a 37-34 half-time advantage.

The Dukes, who were the last major team in the country to be beaten, never got closer than one point against the experienced Illini.

None of the consolation games proved terribly exciting, although Oklahoma City had to stall to defeat UCLA, 55-53, in the prelude to the Santa Clara-Wyoming game at Corvallis, Ore. North Carolina State, beaten by St. John's, came back to trounce Penn State, 69-60 at Charlotte, N. C.; Dayton beat Princeton, 77-61, in the first half of the Illinois-Duquesne twin bill at Chicago; and Texas Christian whipped New Mexico A&M, 61-44, in the first game at Kansas City.

An upset also enlivened the finale of the National AAU Tournament, in which the Peoria Caterpillars started fast to whip the Bartlesville, Okla., Phillips Oilers 66-53.

"I've never taken to doubleheaders in the spring, but that might be better than the way things are now. At least the teams and manager would know exactly what the opposition was to be."

Little League Baseball To Be Played In Bangor Area

Bangor—Little League baseball will be featured in this area during the coming months, it was revealed yesterday by officials of the movement who will meet at the Jacksonian Democratic club today at 8 p. m., to discuss purchase of uniforms and the 1952 schedule.

The league will be made up of four teams, one from each of Bangor's four wards. Every boy between the ages of eight and 12 years may attempt to land a position on the respective clubs.

Marshall Pysher is president of the new development, while other officials include John Linaberry, vice president; Jesse Mackintosh, secretary, and Louis Trigiani, treasurer.

Each team has been appointed a manager and coach for the coming campaign. Elwood Parsons will pilot the First Ward, with Sherwood Holland serving as coach on the same club. Second Ward will be managed by Clyde Grigg, with William Scott the team's coach.

LeRoy Heard is manager of the Third Ward, and Melbourne Lobb is coach. Fourth Ward will be managed by George Delassandro and Leonard Pinto will serve as coach.

Dominic Spagnola has been appointed as umpire-in-chief for the circuit.

Each team will play 18 games, and each squad will be allowed a maximum of 15 players.

Monroe County League Teams To Play Five Baseball Games

Tannersville—Five baseball games will be played by every member of the Monroe County league this season, it was revealed yesterday on the release of the circuit's official baseball schedule. Every club will take on every other member of the league on one occasion this year.

The schedule was prepared here by Lawrence "Joe" Wile and Harry Werkheiser, principal and coach at Pocono High respectively.

Action is scheduled to get under way on Thursday, April 24, with three games on the agenda.

Following opening day activity, all games will be played on Friday, through May 23.

All contests will get under way at 2 p. m.

Schedule follows:
April 24	Coolbaugh at Barrett	Away
April 25	Chestnut Hill at Poik	Away
April 26	Tobyhanna Twp. at Tannersville	Home
May 2	Barrett at Chestnut Hill	Home

Romack Triumphs Over O'Sullivan
Pinehurst, N. C. (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Barbara Romack rallied after dropping the first three holes yesterday to battle her way back to a two and one victory over Pat O'Sullivan in the finals of the fiftieth North and South Golf tournament.

Early Lead
Pat, 25-year-old Orange, Conn., swinger, parred the first three holes to take an early commanding lead, but the little iceberg from Sacramento, Calif., didn't let her win another.

In a nerveless demonstration of top flight golf under pressure, the tiny teen-ager from the coast put an abrupt halt to Pat's bid for a record-equalling third successive championship.

Victim
Steve Gromek was the victim of the homer barrage. "Hank" Sauer slammed two out of the park to total four for the spring. Roy Smalley whacked his third of the barnstorming tour, and Frank Baumholtz got his first. Except for one of Sauer's blasts, there was a Cub on base each time.

Dodgers Blast Red Sox, 14-2
Miami, Fla. (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers rolled out their big guns for the first time this spring yesterday and smothered the Boston Red Sox, 14-2.

Breaks Slump
Gil Hodges broke out of his slump with a pair of three-run homers which featured six-run outbursts in the second and seventh innings. Pitcher Clem Labine and Bobby Morgan, shifted to third following his loose play at short Saturday, also hit for the circuit.

Red Lion Wins Legion Crown
Red Lion, Pa. (AP)—Red Lion's host team won the Pennsylvania American Legion basketball championship by defeating Carlisle, 67-64, here Saturday night.

Advancement
Red Lion had moved into the finals by eliminating Coaldale while Carlisle knocked off Indiana. In the consolation game Indiana edged Coaldale, 52-50, in an overtime period.

Junior Division Takes Over With Two Tilts

Two games in the junior division will open the 1952 Gold Medal Basketball Tournament at the Monroe County YMCA today, with the first encounter slated to get underway at 7 p. m. A total of 13 entries will take part in the battle for junior division laurels.

The opening night schedule will send Nash Motors against Newman's squad in the lid-lifter, while DeVivo's Shoemen tangle with the Tannersville Hot Rods in the nightcap of the doubleheader, at 8:15.

Two more junior division games will be played tomorrow night, while a singleton in this bracket will be held on Wednesday and Thursday.

Doubtful
George Metropoulos, athletic director at the YMCA, announced last night that it was very doubtful that a senior division Gold Medal Tournament will be held this year, due to the fact that Gold Medal rules call for eight teams, while only six clubs have officially entered senior bracket at the present time.

However, Metropoulos announced that even though there may not be a Gold Medal Tournament for senior teams, there will be some sort of a tournament, complete with trophies and awards.

The six teams officially entered in the senior division are Newell's Awning Men, Sherman Theater, Units, Pocono Gardens Lodge, Vets and Deerhead Inn.

All games are open to the public, which will be called upon to pay a "slight admission fee," which in turn will be used to pay the officials.

Former Yank Hurler Dies

Cleveland (AP)—Ex-New York Yankee pitcher Steve Sundra, suffering from an incurable disease, died yesterday at 40.

Sundra was flown here from his home in Atlantic City, N. J., in a chartered plane two weeks ago to spend his last days with his father, Michael. The nature of his disease was not disclosed.

Weight Loss
His illness had dragged Sundra's weight down to 75 pounds. He weighed 185 pounds when he played for the New York Yankees after the peak of his career, and his weight went to 215 pounds after he retired from baseball in 1946 to do construction work.

Browns Sweep Pair From Seals

San Francisco (AP)—Lou Sleater missed a perfect game by a punt as the Browns took the second game of an exhibition double-header, 2-0, from San Francisco yesterday after winning the opener 13-5 yesterday. The second contest ended after seven innings.

Ray Hamrick beat out his punt in the sixth inning after Sleater had retired 16 Seals in a row.

Pirates Edge White Sox, 7-6
San Bernardino, Calif. (AP)—Catcher Eddie Fitz Gerald's single in the seventh inning with George Strickland aboard gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-6 exhibition victory yesterday over the Chicago White Sox.

Strickland opened the frame with the third of his singles, raced to second on a passed ball and romped home on Fitz Gerald's drive to center field.

Winner
Murry Dickson, 26-game winner for the Bucs last season, got the nod for the win although he gave up three runs in the first two innings. But Dickson also helped his own cause with a two-run double in the second. Dick Hall's triple in the second frame accounted for two other tallies.

State C. Of C. Urges Action To Keep Mills

Harrisburg (AP) — The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce's board of directors urged Gov. John S. Fine to appoint a representative committee to investigate "serious losses" of the State's textile industry to other states.

The board, at a weekend session, adopted a resolution acknowledging that many textile mills "are migrating, especially to southern states."

The board asked the Governor to name the committee "to study the problems of the textile industry and make the necessary recommendations and suggestions for action to prevent the further loss of, and to recover this important and historic industry in the State."

Another resolution adopted urged Congress to discontinue wage and price controls on June 30, instead of extending them as now proposed in pending legislation.

Other provisions of the defense production act, the chamber said, should not be extended beyond March 1, 1953.

By that time the national economy should be in a position to provide both the requirements of the defense program and the civilian economy "without the need of complex production controls," the chamber said.

"Present favorable price conditions," the statement said, "have resulted from natural market forces and not from government price controls."

The chamber's directors expressed concern over further centralization of government authority in Washington and urged that taxing and other powers of the state and local governments be safeguarded against "federal usurpation."

The board endorsed a bill by Rep. Francis J. Walter (D-Pa.) to reaffirm the titles of the states to submerged lands or tidelands. The chamber said a recent U. S. Supreme court decision holding the Federal government has jurisdiction over those lands placed their ownership in doubt.

Soldiers Honor Red Cross Aides

Phoenixville (AP) — Soldier-patients at the Valley Forge General hospital opened their 1952 Red Cross drive yesterday with a new twist—a party for Red Cross volunteer workers.

The patients—some dressed as "hostesses" with wigs and Red Cross uniforms—served the volunteer workers refreshments. Each Red Cross service chairman was presented with an orchid.

Col. John M. Welch, the hospital's commanding officer, said the patients decided to stage the party in appreciation for the services provided them by the Red Cross throughout the year.

Play Built Around Math Exam Theme

Cresco—The Barrett Township school mathematics department presented a special assembly last week dramatizing the preparation of a math student for examinations.

Entitled "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the "play" was divided into three acts—the preparation of a program for Snow White, who was described as a "new senior and very bright"; homework and final examinations.

Vivian Price played "Snow White," Effie Rider was seen as the "Queen" and Eddie Heckman was cast as "Prince Charming" (a "college man of great learning").

Cast as the seven dwarfs were the following: Graham Andoe as "Doc Formula"; Scott Shumaker as "Grumpy Fraction"; Skip Boone as "Sneeze Percent"; Eugene Lee as "Happy Ratio"; Donald Kropp as "Sleepy, the congruent triangle"; David Kropp as "Bashful"; and Bob Triola as "Dopey Decimal."

Ruth Burgdorf served as prompter with Shirley Sickler and Barbara Reisenwitz members of the program committee.

Edward E. Bosman is the advisor.
